

my husband, myself and all of our adult children are disgusted and outraged by the so called performance (more like gutteral animal behavior) and 'accidental' shirt falling off, breast revealing, that was aired on the superbowl halftime show. what is the matter with people!!? does anyone have ANY moral fiber anymore!? is the almighty dollar the only thing that matters? . because,let's face it, isn't this all about ratings and money? yes sir, let's line our pockets while our society goes down the toilet. i believe some of the organizers of this event knew darn well that this was planned, and for those that did not, they are still responsible for what happens on their programs. shame on janet and justin for their contribution to this, it's to bad that they don't realize how young, impressionable teens look up to them(they should not) and mimic them. do any of you have precious little children and grandchildren,whose innocent eyes see all of this, and WILL form ideas of this world through what they believe the world says is ok? GOD help our degenerate society.
